Workload Policy of the Department of Bioengineering College of Engineering Northeastern University

Approved by the Department of Bioengineering on September 12, 2018

Approved by the Dean of the College of Engineering on September 12, 2018

Provost approved on October 2, 2018

The Department of Bioengineering (BioE) is rapidly growing; adding new courses; transforming and expanding our curriculum; preparing for our first ABET accreditation; recruiting new faculty; establishing new research laboratories; expanding teaching labs; initiating our capstone program; and creating a new capstone maker space while supporting our ongoing Bachelor's, Master's and Doctoral programs. This situation places unique pressures on faculty and staff and on creating and implementing a workload policy to (1) support the rapid growth of the Department and (2) enable every faculty member to maximize his/her potential.

The work of faculty in BioE consists of (1) research, scholarship, creative activities, and professional development (hereafter referred to as research); (2) teaching and education (hereafter referred to as teaching); and (3) service and leadership (hereafter referred to as service). Research includes all forms of knowledge creation directly by the faculty and of grant applications that enables knowledge creation. Teaching includes all forms of knowledge propagation, in and outside of classroom, online and on-ground. Service includes all forms of administration, management and leadership roles within Northeastern University, and in professional societies and communities that support the University's mission in knowledge creation and propagation or promote positive societal impacts of the knowledge creation and propagation.

Each full-time faculty member has a total of 100% workload. For full-time non-tenure track teaching faculty, the baseline of this workload distribution is 95% for teaching (normally equivalent to six four-credit-hour courses per year), and 5% for service. For non-tenure-track research faculty, the baseline of workload is 100% for research with no service and teaching requirement, unless negotiated on an individual basis. For tenured faculty, the baseline of workload is 40% for teaching, 40% for research and 20% for service. For tenure-track faculty, the baseline of workload is 30% for teaching, 60% for research and 10% for service. As research or service effort changes, the teaching load is adjusted through discussions with the Chairs.

Requests for reduced teaching load for family leaves, medical leaves, and maternity leaves will be accommodated according to university policy. If a faculty member holds a joint appointment, the default workload will be prorated according to the percentage of appointment in this department and this can be modified through coordination with other units of the joint appointment. It is recognized that special circumstances may require, on an individual basis, variation from the baseline workloads specified above. If a faculty member has concerns about his/her workload the concern should be directed to the department chair. If the concern persists, it will be discussed and decided by an ad hoc committee appointed by the Chair.

This policy document will be reviewed and approved by faculty annually at a department faculty meeting as the academic year starts, and become available on the department SharePoint site together with the percent breakdown of workload for each faculty, and the department teaching load distribution and university committee assignments.

Checklist for Unit Workload Policy Documents

Each unit's chairperson and/or dean should initial each point on the checklist. By doing so, he or she attests that the full time faculty workload policy document satisfies each of these requirements.
